Greetings from the Principal's Office

January, as with August & September, is a very important month for our students. The first couple weeks after the break are some of the most crucial. It can be difficult for students to get back into the swing of classes, but getting themselves going sooner rather than later is critical. It takes a great deal more work to raise a grade than it does to lower one. Starting strong will help ensure a positive second semester. I look forward to the remaining five months of school this year.

Honor Roll: Congratulations to all of the students who made the Honor Roll and Honorable Mention for 1st Semester. This is great honor and proves that your hard work has paid off. Keep up the good work. We had a record number of students make the Honor Roll this past semester. Thank you to Mr. Hoyt and his classes for making some new boards very quickly. A quick reminder that report cards are available on Powerschool for grades 5-12. These are not mailed home. If you need help accessing these reports, please contact me at school.

New Homework Policy: Many teachers began implementing our new 'No Zero' homework policy at the end of last semester. We saw many positives from this policy and I look forward to seeing the continued success of our students. Here is the wording of the new policy.

Student Academic Success

Academic success or failure is determined by a number of factors. One of the main factors of student failure is homework. Failing to do homework results in two major problems; one, the student does not practice and move toward mastery of a topic; and two, incomplete homework results in a zero in the gradebook. Many students do not realize the devastating effect zeros have on their cumulative grade.

Overton Public School is attempting to eliminate zeros from student grades by making sure all homework is completed and turned in. The teachers have been asked to hold students accountable for all homework. If a student comes to class without homework completed, he or she is to call his or her parent and make arrangements to attend Access Period that afternoon or to come in before school the next morning. Students who ride the bus must stay after school the following day if arrangements cannot be made for that afternoon.

Flexibility is built into the policy to benefit teachers and students. Teachers are allowed to use professional judgment when addressing the needs of the students. Some teachers may find time during the day for the student to come to them and complete the homework rather than having them stay after school. For example, teachers may ask a student to come in during Homeroom, Study Hall, or during their planning period if the student has time in their current class. Teachers must communicate with the other teachers on the last example. If a student completes their homework during the day, they are still required to turn their homework in after school so the teacher can check the paper for accuracy and to ensure the student comprehends the material unless other arrangements have been made between the student and teacher. All late homework will be graded at 80% of the actual grade. If a student does not show up for Access Period, when assigned, the teacher will issue a detention for this action.

By implementing the No-Zero Policy, it is our hope the overall academic success of our students will improve, the depth of learning will increase, and raised achievement and growth will be reflected on our local and state assessments.

Thank you for your support of the school. If you have any further questions or comments, please feel free to contact me or stop by and visit.

Educationally yours,

Mr. Brian Fleischman, Principal

Parents Encouraging Parents (P.E.P.) Conference

The annual Parents Encouraging Parents (PEP) conference has been scheduled for March 17-19 this year at Younes Conference Center in Kearney, NE. This conference is open to all Nebraska parents who are raising a child with a verified disability and have an active IFSP or IEP. The purpose of PEP is to bring parents of children with disabilities together in an accepting environment. A major objective of the three day conference is to help parents realize that each is doing the best they can at this time along with sharing ideas, feelings and information. Another objective is to model how parents work with the professionals who are educating children with disabilities. There is no registration fee, but enrollment is limited to the first 100 participants to register. If you have attended a PEP conference in the last ten years please do not register. Please register by February 18, 2016. For more information or a brochure, please contact Hayley Ryan at 987-2424 ext. 108 or email hayley.ryan@overtoneagles.org. FCCLA Members Complete STAR Projects

The Overton FCCLA Chapter is hard at work with STAR projects. STAR stands for Students Taking Action with Recognition and is the main competitive event for FCCLA. District STAR is January 27th in Maxwell. Participants present speeches about projects they have completed or on informative topics that have to do with some aspect of Family and Consumer Sciences. Each participant is awarded a gold, silver or bronze medal based off their overall score. Top gold medals advance on to the state competition which will be held in early April in Lincoln. Participating from Overton FCCLA are Hannah Smith, Jordan Bidwell, Candelaria Bueno, Kamryn Harms, Ashley Carlson, DJ Anderson, Sidney Enochs and Taylor Kizer. FCCLA will host a presentation night on Monday January 25th at 7 pm in the FACS room for anyone to come and listen to these student's presentations. The following information is what several of these students would like to share with you about their topics.

Take the Shot for Multiple Sclerosis- Taylor Kizer and Sidney Enochs

You know that feeling you get when your legs or feet fall asleep or how dizzy you sometimes feel if you stand up too quickly? Now imagine those feelings never going away. Numbness, tingling, dizziness are just some of the signs and symptoms those with multiple sclerosis might face. Multiple sclerosis is an unpredictable, often disabling disease of the central nervous system that disrupts the flow of information within the brain, and between the brain and body. On Tuesday January 19th we are sponsoring a Black Out to raise awareness and money to donate towards multiple sclerosis research. We have been selling t-shirts and will have extra shirts at the game available for purchase. We will also have a raffle for various prizes including 2 prime rib dinners from Tub's Pub in Sumner, a gift certificate to Tub's Pub, UNK basketball tickets, a signed UNK basketball, other UNK fan gear, as well as a cake raffle and more. We hope you can help us get the gym 'packed in black' on Tuesday to help us 'take the shot for multiple sclerosis'.

Thank you to these Take the Shot for MS Sponsors-

The Secret Addiction- Self-Harm by Candelaria Bueno and Kamryn Harms

Did you know that Self-harm is not a suicidal act? In fact, people who self-harm do not want to die. It's just a way for them to cope with problems they may be going through. Self-harm is also not a mental health problem.

Not an attention seeker- Family, friends, and doctors think that people who self-harm are just seeking attention, but in reality they do it in a secret manner because they feel ashamed about what they do and are afraid of seeking help.

Ways to help!- It may be difficult to detect someone who self-harms but if you know someone who does, here are a couple of ways you can help someone who self-harms.

1. You can ask how they are feeling. Give them some advice and help them cope through the problems they may be going through.
2. Do NOT be judgmental. Being judgmental would probably be the worst possible way to help! Please try to be understanding and just listen.
3. The most supportive way to help someone who self-harms is, When they talk to you about their problems. Be respectful and compassionate about what the person is telling you even if you find it difficult to accept what they are doing. Give them a listening ear and some space. When they are ready to talk they will.

Life Under Water: The Dark Side of Depression by Jordan Bidwell

Depression is a real and serious illness that affects nearly 2 million teenagers a year. It can lead to other medical issues such as cancers and diseases. Some symptoms of depression include: unexplainable tiredness or aches, a loss of interest in activities, a change in weight or appetite, and many others. If these symptoms last for longer than six months and interfere with your life, then you might have depression. You may know or suspect someone of having depression. To help them, you must first learn that they have it. This has to voluntarily come from them. Do not push them to tell you something that's uncomfortable, because depression can be. Be there for support, comfort, and encouragement. Always listen, even when you don't like or understand what they're saying. Just being there for them is enough to help.

Sibling Rivalry by Hannah Smith

Mirror, mirror on the wall who is mom and dad's favorite after all? Most siblings will experience some type of completion at some point in their lives, this is a natural thing called sibling rivalry. Most of the time younger children fight physically with one another, while older children tend to get into more verbal arguments. Sibling rivalry can even continue into adulthood. It can be caused by a new baby, changing needs of each child, a child's individual temperament or something stressful happening within the family. So what can parents do to prevent sibling rivalry or at least help it from happening as much? Try these suggestions-

- Don't pick favorites or compare one child to another
- Give each child their own space and time to do their own thing without other siblings in tow.
- Give each child individual attention away from their siblings. Plan a daddy/daughter date or mother/son project.
- Set your children up to cooperate, rather than compete against each other.
- Teach them conflict management- don't deny their feelings but rather help them to express them appropriately.

Character Clip from the Counselor

Kindness is Contagious!

Have you ever wondered whether tiny acts of kindness have larger consequences? Researchers have shown that generosity is contagious! Goodness spurs goodness, it has been found that a single act of kindness can influence dozens more. The more time you spend looking for the good in others, the less time you have to focus on any negativity around you. Generosity and cooperation, in the form of kinds spreads by good deeds and positive interactions. Throughout February, students will be focusing on seeing the good in others, not just doing good deeds, but also practicing giving the compliments and noticing when others do something well or helpful. Too often we see good, but we don't stop to acknowledge and promote the good around us.

Kindness and Cooperation are lifelong values and skills we all continue to use and work to improve. Cooperation is the ability to work well with other in order to get something done. Children need to understand early on that cooperation is a valuable skill. They also need to learn that accountability, responsibility, being a good team-player, and communicating effectively are all part of getting along.

Cooperation and kindness go hand in hand.

Ms. Stevens

The Key of Ownership

We will continue to work on:

- * Learning about responsibility and accountability, as an individual and in groups.*
- * Working together with kindness and compassion for others.*
- * Choosing to share and give to others.*
- * Communicating and encouraging others.*
