Happy Thanksgiving from the Principal's Office

Where in the world did this semester go? It is November and I'm wondering what happened to September & October! Turkeys are being made in the elementary classes and it seemed like they were just coloring 1st Day of School pictures. Congratulations to the Volleyball and Football teams on their amazing fall seasons. Thank you for representing Overton positively during all competitions. Congratulations to our National Champion FFA team. Good Luck to the Wrestlers and Basketball teams as you begin your seasons.

Upcoming Events:

Reminders for Students:

- As we begin Basketball games, please remember that students are not allowed to leave the game after you have arrived. If you do leave, you will not be able to re-enter the building.
- Remember to dress appropriately for the weather as we move in the winter months. Hats and gloves are a necessity when it gets colder. Elementary students will have outside recess as much as possible so dress accordingly. A hooded sweatshirt may not be appropriate on very cold days. If you need a winter coat, please stop by my office to visit with me. Thank you to parents for ensuring your child is dressed appropriately for the weather.
- The final day of the 1st Semester is Friday, December 19th.

Educationally yours,

NFHS & NSAA #BenchBadBehavior

Overton Eagle fans, we can do our part to impart sportsmanship back into high school athletic events. Yelling, screaming, and/or cursing at officials or opposing teams has no place in high school athletics and is a very large reason for the lack of officials in our state. Disagreeing with an official's call is one thing but when the disagreeing turns into screaming and berating the individual we have crossed a very dark line. Actions along these lines are grounds for removal from the facility and potential revocation of access to Overton events. We can and need to do our part in this effort. Thank you for your attention and efforts to support the #BenchBadBehavior campaign. Go Eagles!

Update from the MS/HS Principal

The end of the 1st Semester will be here before we know it. After Thanksgiving Break, we will have only three weeks until Christmas Break. Please take a moment to check your student's grades and encourage them to finish the semester strong.

Jr. High and High School Winter Sports, along with the High School One Act Play, are in full swing. This busy schedule will make December fly by.

Middle School students will continue to go outside for a short recess during lunch. As we transition into winter weather, please ensure they bring appropriate warm clothing for this activity.

Middle School/High School Upcoming Schedule:

- No School – Thanksgiving Break: Wed.–Fri., Nov. 26, 27, & 28
- Mon., Dec. 1: Winter Sports Pictures (morning)
- Tues., Dec. 2: 11:30 a.m. dismissal for the Overton JH Wrestling Tournament
- Calendar Change: One Act Districts in North Platte moved to Friday, Dec. 5
- Fri., Dec. 19: End of 1st Semester
- No School: Dec. 20 – Jan. 4
- Mon., Jan. 5: School Resumes – First Day of 2nd Semester

As always, view <https://www.overtoneagles.org/> for the most updated school information.

I wish you and your families safe travels during the Holiday season.

Educationally yours,

In Overton, veterans are heroes

75 banners will honor those who served

MIKE KONZ
Enterprise Editor

The village of Overton has one of the many attractive veterans memorials in south-central Nebraska.

Standing proudly on the east edge of town along U.S. Highway 30, the Overton memorial carries the names of veterans who served their nation in major conflicts beginning with World War II.

Soon, a new salute that is the brainchild of a sophomore at Overton High School will appear on dozens of power poles around Overton. The banners will complement the polished stone memorial along Highway 30.

"I can feel the momentum rising," said Paige Walahoski, the high school sophomore who spearheaded Overton's Hometown Heroes Salute.

When the community-wide project climaxes on Veterans Day, Overton residents will get their first look at more than 75 colorful vinyl banners bearing veterans' photos. Soon, the banners will hang from dozens of light poles around Overton. Paige said she hopes that the banners reinforce the respect and appreciation Overton's 650 residents hold for their military veterans.

"We are really excited about the Nov. 11 reveal," said Paige, a cheerleader and member of Overton High School's FCCLA future business leaders club. She has been working for months on the banners that will create a visual expression of Overton residents' gratitude for their veterans.

"I was glad and proud when I heard about the banners," said Jess Putnam Jr., a U.S. Navy veteran like his father, Jess Sr.. "Of all the things you could do, this is really good."

Paige kicked off her project almost two years ago by completing a banner salute in Sumner, which is about 16 miles north of Overton. Paige's older brother, Parker, had things rolling in Sumner, with 29 banners hanging over the village's streets. After Parker left for college, Paige took over and added another 19 to make it 48 banners in Sumner.

When work was finished in Sumner, Paige's focus shifted to Overton. She made multiple announcements so everyone would have an opportunity to purchase a banner for their heroes. A total of 75 families put in orders. Banners were $145 each. Most of the money covered materials used by members of Overton High School's shop class to hang the banners from poles.

Other volunteers and donors will be purchasing and preparing food for the Nov. 11 luncheon.

HOMETOWN HEROES, COURTESY

MIDDLE: Jess Putnam Sr. of Overton served aboard the USS Saratoga aircraft carrier. He appreciates the efforts that have gone into the Hometown Heroes salute to military veterans.

RIGHT: Tim White is well known around Overton for his sports and school activity photos. When his banner hangs over the streets of Overton, he'll also be known as a U.S. Army veteran.

On Nov. 11, many Overton residents and students will gather in the school in honor of those who have passed away, but their families cherish their memories and purchased banners in remembrance.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Tips Families Can Use to Help Children Do Better in School

Title I-Educational Service Unit 10

December 2025

Help your elementary schooler develop math fact fluency

Math fluency is similar to being fluent in a language. Fluent math students know that $2 + 2 = 4$ without having to think about it, just as they know “Hello” is a greeting. Being able to recall math facts automatically lets your child focus on the more complex aspects of solving problems.

To strengthen your child’s fluency in math:

- Use counters. Small items like dry beans or buttons help students “see” numbers and processes. Your child can put several pennies in a cup, dump them out and add those that land on “heads” plus those that land on “tails.” Then, have your child add the tails number to the heads number. Or, subtract the heads number from the total number of coins.
- Play Math War. Remove face cards from a deck and deal the rest face down. Each player flips over two cards. In Addition War, each player adds the numbers on their cards, and the one with the higher sum wins all the cards. In Subtraction War, each player subtracts their smaller number from their larger one: the one with the larger difference wins the cards.
- Choose a number, such as the date. Ask your child to come up with as many addition and subtraction facts as possible that equal that number. On the 15th, your child might think of $20 - 5$, $7 + 8$ and $10 + 5$.

Fill winter break with learning fun

The thought of days of free time during a school break can inspire joy in students—and mild panic in their families. To avoid hearing “I’m bored” from your child, plan a few enjoyable activities that promote learning:

- Volunteer as a family. Turn your child’s attention from the “I wants” to helping others who are less fortunate.
- Cook together. Help your child make seasonal foods you remember from your childhood. Share your memories.
- Read and watch. Choose a book that has been made into a movie. Read it together, and then watch the movie. Discuss how the two are alike and different.
- Explore first-person history. Help your child interview relatives—even you—about life in the past. Together, brainstorm a list of questions, such as, “What was school like for you when you were my age?” and “What trends were popular?” Have your child record or write down the conversations.

Kindness is empowering

It’s true that children aren’t always kind to one another. But your child doesn’t have to accept unkindness as the norm. Talk together about ways to respond if a classmate is being treated unkindly. Then, challenge your child to do at least one nice thing for a classmate each week. Explain that your child has the power to make a difference.

Say ‘no’ to multitasking

It isn’t really possible to concentrate on many things at once. Research shows that when students multitask, their minds just switch quickly between tasks without focusing on any.

When your child does schoolwork, eliminate distractions as much as possible. Then, help your child schedule time to do tasks consecutively, rather than at the same time. Limit multitasking to activities that don’t need attention, like eating a snack while chatting.

Source: C. Kubu, Ph.D. and A. Machado, MD, “The Science is Clear: Why Multitasking Doesn’t Work,” Cleveland Clinic.

Check off responsibilities

Checklists are useful tools that can help your child remember to fulfill responsibilities without being reminded. Sit down together and make a list of responsibilities your child is ready to handle independently. Here is a starter list you can adapt:

- Get up on time.
- Complete schoolwork.
- Read at least 20 minutes a day.
- Take care of personal hygiene.

Agree on consequences for shirking. And be sure to praise your child for a job well done!

How can I teach fairness to my highly competitive kids?

Q: My children are so competitive that it's an issue. My younger child cries after losing, and the older one sometimes cheats when my back is turned. How can I teach them to be good sports?

A: Whether children are competing in games, in the classroom or in life, they need to learn how to play fairly and accept the results. To help your children learn these lessons:

- Explain that fair play is important. Make it clear you expect them to play by the rules and be gracious to opponents—win or lose.
- Set time limits. Establish a time to stop playing and set a timer before the game starts. When it goes off, the game is over.
- Be gentle when correcting your children for making a wrong move. Just explain what the player should do instead.
- Discourage cheating. Review the rules at the start of the game. If a child tries to cheat, just repeat the rules. The second time, calmly say, "When you don't play by the rules, people get upset. If it happens again, the game is over."
- Reject trash talk. Every poke, put-down or unkind comment earns the player a foul. Five fouls, and the player is out.

Are you teaching your child to move on?

Disappointments happen to all students from time to time. Events are canceled, games are lost, friendships fade. Are you helping your child learn to move forward after letdowns? Answer yes or no to the questions below:

- ___ 1. Do you help your child see what can't be changed and what can? "You can't change the weather. But you can change your plans."
- ___ 2. Do you talk about things to learn from mistakes? "Next time, you can start studying a few days earlier."
- ___ 3. Do you explain that it is OK to express feelings, but not OK to sulk?
- ___ 4. Do you teach your child to expect the unexpected and respond in positive ways?

- ___ 5. Do you help your child brainstorm next steps to take?

How well are you doing?

More yes answers mean you are helping your child learn to cope with disappointment. For each no, try that idea.

"You may not control all the events that happen to you, but you can decide not to be reduced by them."
—Maya Angelou

Discuss respectful behavior

When children behave respectfully toward teachers, classmates and school staff, they help create the positive academic environment all students need to learn. Remind your child that it's important to:

- Be courteous to everyone.
- Raise a hand and wait to be called on, and avoid interrupting others.
- Listen when the teacher or classmates are speaking.
- Accept constructive feedback from the teacher politely. Teachers point out mistakes so students can learn from them.

Play with punctuation

Punctuation makes writing easier to read and understand. Here's a fun way to get this point across to your child and provide some practice at the same time:

- 1. Write a short story and remove the punctuation.
- 2. Ask your child to read it aloud. It's challenging!
- 3. Edit the story together, adding punctuation that makes it easy (or funny) to read. Talk about why you are choosing—or not choosing—certain marks. Then, let your child write a story for you to punctuate.

Let your child tackle it first

Students gain skills and confidence when they learn to do things for themselves. Let your child take the lead with:

- Addressing confusion about school-work or grades. Ask your student to talk to the teacher about it before you step in.
- Solving minor issues with peers. Discuss things your child can do.

If issues persist or are serious, such as bullying, contact the school yourself right away.
